Introduction

Innovation is the implementation of a new or significantly improved product, service, process or working practice. This includes new marketing methods and business models. The critical step on the road to innovation is the idea or inspiration that provides the impetus to commit the time and resources necessary to bring it to fruition.

This document focuses on the creation and identification of new ideas and opportunities that can lead to innovation. It outlines the conditions necessary to inspire ideas and their subsequent collection, selection and development. In keeping with the emphasis of this Technical Specification, particular attention is given to idea generation within small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs), their organizational structures and needs.

Different levels of innovation are considered: incremental, radical and disruptive, and the implications of each level for organizations and their innovation management systems. Case studies are included in Annex A to provide insight through the experience of others. Collaboration is often essential to the successful inception and development of new ideas, and is covered in more depth in CEN/TS 16555-5, Innovation management — Part 5: Collaboration management. In addition, this document complements CEN/TS 16555-3, Innovation management — Part 3: Innovation thinking.

1 Scope

This Technical Specification provides guidance for managing the process of originating new ideas from which innovations may be developed.

It is applicable to all types of organization including manufacturing and services industries, the voluntary sector, governmental and social enterprise but with a particular focus on small- and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs).

The guidance in this TS covers issues to be considered by those responsible for managing innovation, in particular during the creative phase, and the sourcing of ideas from within and outside the organization.
