EN 17371-3:2020 (E)Introduction

This document is part of a series of European Standards that address different phases in the provision of services (see Figure 1): the service procurement phase (EN 17371-1), the service contracting phase (EN 17371-2¹⁾) and the service execution phase (EN 17371-3).

Each part of the series can be used individually or in combination with the other parts.

The drafting of the series was initiated after CEN presented the findings of a study on the potential and a possible impact of horizontal service standards on the EU single market for services. This study was as a response to the standardization request M/517 from the European Commission for programming and development of horizontal service standards. The objective of this standardization request was to encourage the development of voluntary European Standards covering issues common to many service sectors. Such standards should aim to facilitate compatibility between services providers, improve information and the quality of services to the recipient.

This document aims to facilitate the discussion between the service buyer and the service provider on service performance. For example, service buyer and service provider can use this standard to:

- a) enable benchmarking;
- b) facilitate the setting of industry-specific best practice KPIs;
- c) enable fair comparison of different approaches;
- d) enable comparison between external providers and an internal department;
- e) make a clear distinction between facts and, anecdotes or exceptions; and
- f) enable escalations to be performed in a structured and well-informed way.

This document also aims at specifying targets for regular services, e.g. in terms of reliability, defect density, quality as well as targets for response services, e.g. in terms of response and resolution times and defect removal efficiency. The aim of this document is to provide guidance on the performance measurement.

1) Under preparation. Stage at the time of publication: prEN 17371-2.
